Supporting FACTS (state briefly without citing cases or law) _____

See attachment page 1

-1-

I. THE PETITIONER'S CONFESSION SHOULD HAVE BEEN SUPPRESSED BECAUSE IT WAS THE FRUIT OF AN ILLEGAL SEARCH OF HIS PERSON - SPECIFICALLY HIS SHOD FEET

The petitioner confessed only after the police ordered him to remove his sneakers, thereby revealing splattered blood on his socks. The removal of petitioner's sneakers constituted a warrantless search. Because the police had no justification for this search, it was illegal and violated the petitioner's constitutional rights, pursuant to the Fourth Amendment and Article 12 and 14 of the Massachusetts Declaration of Rights, to be free from unreasonable searches. Because the petitioner would not have confessed but for this illegal search, the confession should have been suppressed.

II. THE PETITIONER'S CONFESSION SHOULD HAVE BEEN SUPPRESSED BECAUSE IT WAS TAINTED BY INCULPATORY STATEMENTS OBTAINED IN VIOLATION OF MIRANDA V.
ARIZONA

The petitioner's confession should also have been suppressed because it followed immediately after the police had extracted incriminating statements from him by means of custodial interrogation without the benefit of Miranda warnings. Specifically, after the police ordered petitioner to remove his sneakers and discovered blood splattering on his socks, they demanded that he explain how blood had gotten splattered on his socks. PCM Tr. 100-01. They noted that petitioner began shivering and got visibly nervous. R.A. 101. Eventually, petitioner stated that he must have gotten blood on his socks when he walked upstairs and found his parents. The police interpreted this as an inculpatory response. Sergeant Mullen indicated he did not believe petitioner's explanation. PCM Tr. 101. Officer Young concluded at this point that "it was apparent that Billy Duclos was involved in this murder." PCM 148. Petitioner then asked to speak to Sergeant Mullen alone and eventually confessed. It is undisputed that the police did not read the Miranda warnings to petitioner until after he asked to speak to Sergeant Mullen alone.

Because the police did not Mirandize petitioner before asking him how splattered blood had gotten on his socks, his initial answer was the product of custodial interrogation obtained in violation of Miranda and therefore would have been inadmissible. Furthermore, because this statement was simply incredible - as the police made clear to petitioner and admitted during the evidentiary hearing on the Post Conviction Motion - it was inculpatory and effectively "let the cat out of the bag." In other words, this un-Mirandized statement led to petitioner's subsequent confession. As a result, all of petitioner's statements following immediately after that inculpatory statement must also be suppressed.

III. PETITIONER'S CONFESSION SHOULD HAVE BEEN SUPPRESSED BECAUSE IT WAS THE PRODUCT OF A CUSTODIAL INTERROGATION WITHOUT THE PROTECTION OF MIRANDA WARNINGS

Petitioner asserts that Sergeant Mullen did not read the Miranda warnings to him until after he had confessed his involvement in the killings. Although Sergeant Mullen testified that he read the Miranda warnings to petitioner immediately before he confessed. PCM Tr. 81, and the motion judge found that he did so, R.A. 77, petitioner maintains that the evidence is to the contrary and as a result, the motion judge's finding was clearly erroneous.

Statements made in response to custodial police interrogation are presumed to be "compelled" within the meaning of the privilege against self-incrimination established by the Fifth Amendment and Article 12 of the Massachusetts Declaration of rights unless the defendant receives prophylactic warnings such compelled statements are inadmissible.

Because petitioner confessed in the context of a custodial interrogation, the police were obliged to give him the Miranda warning prior to his confession. In fact, Sergeant Mullen did not read the Miranda warning to him until after he had confessed. There are several undisputed facts which support this claim and contradict Sergeant Mullen's claim that he read the Miranda warnings to petitioner before he confessed.

First, Sergeant Mullen's claim that he wrote the date and time on the Miranda card when he first read the warnings to petitioner but that he did not have petitioner sign the card at that time, PCM Tr. 86, is simply incredible. One would have to accept that Sergeant Mullen took the card from his wallet, placed it on the table, pulled out a pen, and then wrote the date and time on the card, immediately to the left of the blank space designated for petitioner's signature, but did not then hand the pen to petitioner and have him sign the card.

Second, the time noted on the Miranda card - 3:45 a.m. - severely undermines Sergeant Mullen's chronology. Sergeant Mullen admitted that the interview began at 2:15 a.m. and the first statement ended approximately forty-five minutes later. PCM Tr. 77-78. During the next few minutes the police examined petitioner's shoes and socks. Petitioner then confessed to sergeant Mullen alone over the next fifteen to twenty minutes. PCM Tr. 83. Sergeant Mullen then spent a few minutes notifying his partner about the confession. PCM Tr. 84. Sergeant Mullen then returned to the interrogation room and had petitioner and Officer Young sign the card. This chronology would place the time of signing at approximately 3:45 a.m. As noted above, however, Sergeant Mullen claimed that he wrote the time on the card before petitioner had confessed. PCM Tr. 86. If this were the case, the time would have been much closer to 3:00 a.m.. According to this version, all that occurred between the completion of the first statement at 3:00 a.m. and the notation of the time on the card was the examination of the sneakers and socks. It is simply not possible that petitioner's oral confession began at 3:45 a.m. Clearly, then, the evidence supports petitioner's chronology and contradicts Sergeant Mullen's chronology.

Third, the manner in which the police obtained John Smith's Miranda waiver supports petitioner's chronology. After the police had obtained petitioner's confession, which implicated Mr. Smith, they interrogated Mr. Smith. despite the fact that they had probable cause to arrest Mr. Smith they asked him a single question, they did not begin the interrogation by reading the Miranda warning to him. This fact alone is significant. Clearly, these police officers were not concerned about following the requirements of Miranda even when they indisputably had probable cause to suspect the person they were questioning. Furthermore, when Sergeant Mullen finally did read the Miranda warnings to Mr. Smith, he read them from a card identical to the one he read to petitioner. Immediately thereafter he had Mr. Smith sign the card, he had Officer Young sign the card as a witness, and he wrote the time and date on the card. This routine provides strong corroboration for petitioner's claim that he followed the same procedure with him. In other words, he read the warnings to petitioner from the card and then had petitioner and Officer Young sign the card. Finally, he noted the time and date on the card. the Smith chronology provides especially convincing support for petitioner's chronology when one considers it in conjunction with the absurdity of sergeant Mullen's claim that he wrote the time on petitioner's Miranda waiver card but then withheld his pen from petitioner before taking his confession.

because petitioner's confessedn in the context of a custodial interrogation and the police did not read the Miranda warnings to him until after he had confessed, his confession was compelled within the meaning of the privilege against self-incrimination established by the Fifth Amendment and Article 12 of the Massachusetts declaration of rights. Further, it would have been inadmissible at a trial and should have been suppressed. Had defense counsel filed a motion to suppress the confession, it would have been allowed and petitioner would not have pled guilty. For this additional reason, petitioner should be permitted to withdraw his guilty plea

IV. PETITIONER SHOULD BE PERMITTED TO WITHDRAW HIS GUILTY PLEA BECAUSE HIS DECISION TO PLEAD GUILTY WAS BASED ON HIS ATTORNEY'S ADVICE THAT THERE WERE NO GROUNDS TO CHALLENGE THE ADMISSIBILITY OF HIS CONFESSION

There existed several strong grounds, based on indisputable facts or very strong circumstantial evidence, to challenge the admissibility of petitioner's confession. yet his attorney did not even file a motion suppress. Indeed, the motion judge found that trial counsel informed petitioner that "a motion to suppress was not a viable option." R.A. 83 As a result, petitoner decided to plead guilty to murder and expose himself to a mandatory sentence of life in prison.
